THE EVENING CRITIC. ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868

THE SCULLING RACE.

The Bridge Street Boys, Victorious.

The Bridge Street Boys Victorious.

Between 3,500 and 4,000 people were in attendance yesterday to witness the muchtalked-of sculling match between Lewis and Mansfield vs. Robey and McDermott. The Eastern Branch bridge, from which a good view of the race could be had, was literally packed with human freight, and the hill-sides overlooking the course was black with people, all of whom seemed to manifest the most intense interest in the race. Although Robey and McDermott were the favorites in the pools, the great mass of the crowd appeared to sympathize with Lewis and Mansfield. This fact is accounted for on the ground that they were right in their own bailiwick. The course was from the Eastern Branch bridge to the Railroad bridge and return, a distance of three miles. At precisely twenty minutes past 6 Referce Brown called the boats together, and ten minutes later the word. (Go" was given. The start was a splendid one, neither boat having the slightest advantage. Both boats kept about even until the arrival at the stake-boat, when Lewis and Mansfield spurted ahead and rounded the stake-boat in eight minutes and twenty-five seconds. They kept their advantage and cane in on the homestretch, leaving their opponents two boat-lengths behind, and the most tremendous excitement; time, 19 minutes and 12) seconds, The "Bridge-street" boys fairly yelled themselves hoarse. Lewis and Mansfield have announced their intention of challenging any two men in the District.

The Magarrity-Shipman Case.

This morning the case of Jonathan and James McGarrity, charged with an assault on John J. Shipman, was resumed before Judge Bundy in the Police Court. The evidence adduced in the case was to the effect of the statement hitherto published in The Critic, viz.: that the two parties had been partners as contractors; that they met at Woody's, above Georgetown, on their way to the city to give testimony in an equity suit between them; that they got into a fight in front of Woody's; that old man McGarrity attempted to cut Shipman with

THE COURTS.

The Water Supply.

All parties concerned having agreed that the deficient water supply was largely due to a waste of water in the public parks and grounds, a practical movement was commenced this morning, which will probably lead to a very decided increase of the flow of water in private houses.

An employee of Col. Rockwell called on the Water Registrar, and an informal meeting was held to determine what understanding could be arrived at. It was finally agreed to cut off the water from the majority of the public fountains under Col. Rockwell will, to-morrow, assent to this proposal, as he has already signified his willingness, and the movement will be followed by appeals to the proper authorities to reduce the quantity of water consumed in the Botanical Gardens, Capitol grounds, at the Treasury fountains and other places.

This movement is heartly indorsed by the residents of all the elevated portions of the city, and it is considered proper to sacrifice the beauty of grass and lawns to the health and cleanliness of the people.

It is the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, in whose domain is the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, to immediately turn his attention to said bureau. Why should the ladies who work there be treated as they are? They are just as honest and respectable (only they lack such potent influence—curse the word—it puts thousands of incompetents and idlers in office) as their alsters in the Treasury and Interior Depart. our Indian Visitors.

This morning, at 10:30, the remainder of our Indian visitors who have not been permitted to visit the school at Carlisle, Pacame to the Baltimore & Ohio depot for their trip to the wild Western wilds. Each one had a cheap grip-sack and some of them carried the blanket so dear to the aboriginal heart on the left arm. They attracted a cooled of attention from the crowd at the depot, but they bore it with the stolidity chara steristic of the race. The majority of them were in "store clothes," but all wore moccasins.

Our reporter (through the interpreter) asked them whether they had been satisfied with the result of their trip, and they all grinned and said, "How! How!" and it is but fair to suppose that Secretary Kirkwood has made a ten-strike in bringing them here.

The MaGarrity-Shipman Case.

The meming at 10:30, the remainder of oil incompetents and idlers in office) as their aisters in the Treasury and Interior Pepartment 5. Now, they must be out of their desk by 5 o'clock in time to go over to the bureau at 6:15 o'clock and be at work then, standing on their fect and continuously till about 3 o'clock. The ladies at the presses get fifteen cents per hour for extra work if the printers are willing to pay them, which some refuse to do. Now, it is mean and contemptible for officials of this great Government to treat women thus. There is not a lady working at any of these presses who is not fully deserving of $1.50 per day, for day printing by the sheet, while the ladies who assist them only get $1.25. And then, why go to work at 6 o'clock? Why not begin an hour later and work an hour later if the work is pressing? There used to be mere as of Jensthan and might in front of Woody's; that old man McGarrity attempted to cut Shipman with a knife, and that McGarrity's son James battered Shipman on the head with a rock.

After the taking of a mass of testimony, the Court fined Jonathan McGarrity $100 or ninety days imprisonment, and James W. McGarrity, his son, $50 or thirty days.

An appeal was taken.

A Suit for Divorce.

Elizabeth Taylor filed her bill for a divorce to-day from Charles T. Taylor. The petitioner charges that the parties were married in 1864; that afterward defendant committed adultery with Almira Henry in a house on Eleventh street, near Rhode Island avenue, and also with one Mary Plummer; and that defendant has been at all times a development and the street and st drunkard, and addicted to cruelty to his family. She therefore asks a divorce from the bond of matrimony.
